How he did fashion his untoward pace;
For as he forward mov'd his footing old,
So backward still was turn'd his wrinkled face. Fairy Queen.

The lovers standing in this doleful wife,
A warrior bold unwarlike approached near,
Uncouth in arms yclad, and strange disguise. Fairfax.

I am surprized with an uncouth fear;
A chilling sweat o'erruns my trembling joints;
My heart suspects more than mine eye can see.

The trouble of thy thoughts this night
Affects me equally; nor can I like
This uncouth dream, of evil sprung, I fear. Milton.

Say on;
For I that day was absent, as befall,
Bound on a voyage uncouth, and obscure,
Far on excursion toward the gates of hell. Milton.

It was to uncouth a fight, for a fox to appear without a tail, that the very thought made him weary of his life. L'Estrange.

The secret ceremonies I conceal,
Uncouth, perhaps unlawful to reveal. Dryden.

I am more in danger to misunderstand his true meaning, than if I had come to him with a mind unpossessed by doctors of my sect, whose reasonings will of course make all chime that way, and make the genuine meaning of the author seem harsh, strained, and uncouth to me. Locke.

He made that a pleasant study, which, in the hands of Bartolus and Baldus, was uncouth and rugged. Baker.

UNCO'UTHLY. adv. Oddly; strangely.

Venicians do not more uncouthly ride,
Than did their lubber state mankind beltride. Dryden.

UNCO'UTHNESS. n. f. Oddness; strangeness.

To deny himself in the lesser instances, that so when the greater come, they may not have the disadvantage of uncouthness, and perfect strangeness, to enhance their difficulty,
must be acknowledged reasonable. Decay of Piety.

To UNCREATE. v. a. To annihilate; to reduce to nothing; to deprive of existence.

Who created thee, lamenting learn;
Who can uncreate thee thou shalt know. Milton.
